dogs and killed human beings. But...

PRESIDENT ROBAK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...it had seeds in its system, and if you planted those seeds they would grow another big vegetable. It's almost as though that is where these organs are coming from. I'm going to ask for a machine vote and a record vote when we take this, because I'm going to say, like Pilate, I don't want the blood of these people on my hands, and I want the record to verify that fact.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Lynch.

SENATOR LYNCH: Well, one last time. This is it. If in fact hospitals are nonprofit, then I think somehow or other we ought to have language in the law to make them prove it. And as far as building new facilities are concerned, where in fact incentives are offered to the right professionals to do business with that new facility, they're given memberships, partnerships and the rest, that's also unfortunate. You know if you or I as state senators got involved like some of these health professionals do with each other, you would no longer be served...able to serve in your thousand dollar a month responsibilities, because, you see, we're expected to be above reproach, we're expected to do the right thing and be honorable about it, but not in this case. At this point in time, after listening to me twice and Ernie a couple of times and Don Wesely try to fight this battle, you're probably sick and tired of it. But I can tell you this, in my opinion you're really not doing a service to those people you represent. The reason certificate of need doesn't mean anything now is because all of us have allowed it to be emasculated to the point where it doesn't really mean anything. I'd be the first to admit that. But it does mean something. Everybody, as far as I'm concerned, should have some kinds of checks and balances put on them. We even limit how often Ernie can talk, on occasion, three times. But he can find a way to get around that. I think the hospitals and the docs took lessons from Ernie, to tell you the truth, to figure out how they could get around this meaningful checks and balances we used to call certificate of need. Just to test you all I'm going to offer you a challenge, just like some others do
